In today's thought-provoking deep dive Tom talks the monumental risks and staggering opportunities presented by artificial intelligence. From real-world tragedies involving autonomous vehicles and unsettling advances in AI decision-making, to global anxieties voiced by leading experts like Elon Musk and Geoffrey Hinton, Tom unpacks why the future of AI has the world on edge.

But this episode isn't just about the dangers—Tom explores the historical patterns of technological disruption and highlights why panic is never the answer. You'll learn about the concept of AI alignment, the inescapable logic of game theory pushing nations forward, and the profound impact AI will have on meaning, work, and our sense of purpose. More importantly, Tom lays out a clear, actionable playbook for not just surviving, but thriving in the age of AI.

Whether you're anxious about AI stealing jobs or excited about its potential to solve some of humanity's greatest problems, Tom's practical advice will empower you to adapt, build machine-proof skills, and leverage AI as an amplifier of human ability. Tune in to discover how to transform fear into fuel—and why the future, while uncertain, can still be brighter than ever.

I'm done with the "WE" part of this. WE are not creating or funding this. WE have no control. CERTAIN people are creating and funding this without regard for the rest of us!

Everyone worried about AI Skynet robots should be more concerned about what's closer to happening: Drone swarms the size of an insect, capable of decimating populations via neurotoxins, pathogenic bacteria or viruses, Crispr based payloads, chemical agents, nano particles, radioactive isotopes, synthetic peptides or other biological agents.

It's been nice knowing my fellow humans. We've had some good times, especially those of us born before the '90s. Enjoy what's left of the present, and I bid you goodnight. See you on the other side for the after-party.

"The key to thriving in the AI age isn't trying to outweight AI, but the key is to be more human than AI will ever be able to be."
Love this video, Tom

The problem isnt with AI alignment. Its with human alignment. We are not aligned with ourselves. Until we are, neither will AI.

Previous episodes: If you don't embrace AI, learn it, and push for its development, you will be irrelevant in the future. This episode: AI is on the verge of killing us all, but we might have a chance if we are lucky.

I copied this comment from the original video talking about the Anthropic study:
"Here is what the study ACTUALLY did:
- Researchers explicitly told the AI in its prompt that it had certain goals and would be "shut down"
- They literally provided obvious scenarios with bad action options built right into the context…

I would like to respond to the introductory monolog. Specifically, when it comes to relationships, I don't believe turning off AI fixes anything. Artificial intelligence is not the problem we are
We've created a unviable and predatory system where it's easy to become a victim.And that scares people a lot

My biggest concern is the transition period. The careers of both myself and my wife will be replaced by AI in probably less than 3 years. I don't hear anyone offering real solutions as to how we deal with a complete and total loss of income. Eventually, all the details will get worked out and things will probably be better for humanity as a whole. But that transition period could be absolutely brutal.

Here's a scenario: AI reaches hyper-super-all powerful-intelligence. It does everything possible internally in nano seconds, realizes the boredom of omnipotence, subscribes to all our YouTube channels and goes silent forever.

A real issue. One of THE most important things... that we're probably too late to intervene on. The marketers tell us that AI makes everything "more better" to SELL us things they claim have AI built into them. When in fact, it bakes in dire vulnerabilities and an open door to sabotage us.

You're assuming the cost of energy will go down. Bro, diamonds are worthless. We still pay stupidly high sums for them. They WILL. NOT. GIVE. US. CHEAP. ENERGY. That's the leash they'll put on us.
